APPRENTICE NEWS

The Western States Electrical Contest was held in San Jose, California on September 15, 2007. Representing the SW WA Electrical JATC was Matt Dean who competed with the best of the West. Matt gave it his all and just missed placing 3rd among the 27 contestants from Alaska, Washington, Oregon, California, Nevada, and Idaho. Thanks for the great effort Matt, you represented us very well. You can see pictures of Matt in action at the contest on our web site, www.swwaejatc.org.

With the winter months approaching, it is possible that your class may be canceled due to bad weather conditions. The JATC will be tied to the Tacoma School District, if they are closed then that means we will be closed also. If they happen to open 2 hours late then we will open 2 hours late. Listen to the school closures or late starts and we will be doing what ever the Tacoma School District will be doing.

Welding is scheduled to start at Bates Tech on February 26th. We must have at least 9 apprentices enrolled in order to keep the class. Welding gear can be checked out at the JATC office. 45 hours of welding is required prior to advancing to 85%. If you live in the south sound area, you can enroll at South Puget Sound CC.

In construction, more than 10,600 eye injuries each year force workers to miss work. Construction has a much higher rate of eye injuries than any other industry. Nails, tiny pieces of metal, splinters, and cut wire ends fly in the air. Sawing, grinding, and chipping produce dust and grit. Protect your eyes!!!! If your eye is cut or punctured, do not wash out the eye, push on the eye or do not try and pull anything that is stuck in the eye, get to a doctor right away.

Always wear your eye protection.

TD NEWS

There will not be a 2008 Code Change class until the State adopts the new code which could happen anytime between June and December 2008. If you need the code class, you can take the 05 code class that we are offering as the State will give you credit for it even if you have already taken it previously.

WPC is the General Contractor that was chosen to do the tenant improvement on our new Training Center. Work should begin next month (January) once we get the building permit from the City.
